MEMBERSHIP INFORMATION

Applying for CADA membership

Applications are welcomed from antique and fine art dealers with exceptional expertise and an established reputation within their field.

Applicants should be based in Canada and have been trading for at least three years.

All membership applications need to be proposed and seconded by an existing member of the CADA. The proposer and seconder do not need to be active in the same field as the applicant.

Members who meet the criteria are then submitted for election by a vote taken by both the Membership Committee and the CADA Council.

The benefits of CADA membership

- Founded in 1967, CADA is the leading trade association for the fine & decorative art, design & antiques community in Canada.
- Membership of the CADA provides recognition that you are among a limited number of dealers who have demonstrated a proven combination of knowledge, experience and integrity.
- All CADA members are given a dedicated page on cadacanada.com which currently receives tens of thousands of visitors annually from over sixty countries. The initial page setup and administration is included in the annual CADA dues, and includes the upload of inventory items to your dedicated dealer page.
- CADA Members are also provided with a Golden Beaver membership decal to display in their premises or at exhibitions or fairs.
- CADA members gain automatic membership to the prestigious CINOA, the international federation for antique dealers' associations. Each CADA member is represented by an individual dealer page on cinoa.org and is included in their annual global directory.
- We represent the interests of our members to national and international fair organisers and negotiate favourable rates and conditions with a number of suppliers.
- CADA Members must respect and adhere to the CADA Code of Conduct available for viewing at cadacanada.com/code-of-conduct
